THOUGHTS FROM THE HOLY FATHERS -
by St. John Climacus

Few Manage to Stem the Gossiping Tongue

Garrulousness is the rostrum from which vainglory preaches itself. Garrulousness is a proof of ignorance, the door to scandal-mongering, the handmaid of trifling scurrilities and the helpmeet of falsehood. It destroys the spirit of penance, gives rise to boredom, predisposes to lethargy, destroys recollection, distracts attention, obliterates fervor, and cuts off prayer.

Silence on the other hand is the mother of prayer. It frees the prisoner; it guards the divine flame; it watches over reasoning; it protects the sense of penitence.

Few are they who manage to dam the rush of water. Still fewer are they who are able to stem the gossiping tongue.
